

Software

Osborn Maledon has a long history of representing software companies and has developed substantial industry expertise over the years. Our work in the software industry began in the early 1980's, with representation of two value-added resellers who had developed proprietary software applications to be used on the mini-computers they were selling in vertical markets. Since then, we have represented a number of software companies in a variety of industries and stages of development, providing outside general counsel services, as well as licensing, distribution, litigation and other services. We also regularly represent investors in software companies.

We are especially proud to have represented three of Arizona's most prominent software industry success stories throughout their company life cycles, from start-up stage through IPO and eventual M&A transactions: National Health Enhancement Systems, Inc., Viasoft, Inc. and Interact Commerce Corporation (SalesLogix). Other examples of our software industry experience include the following clients:

- Ahead Software Inc.
