

W-14Wednesday, June 26
2:00 pm – 5:15 pm

Artificial Intelligence Is Here to Help

Are you afraid that artificial intelligence will replace you? If you are, come to this program to allay your fears. You'll learn how artificial intelligence can make you a better, more efficient and effective lawyer; how to use analytics to make better decisions about your practice; and how to most effectively use Fastcase (a State Bar of Arizona member benefit) and all of its tools.

What You'll Learn:

1. Learn about artificial intelligence, generally, and how it's being used in law to help, not replace, lawyers
2. Learn about analytics and how to best use them to assist you and your practice
3. Learn how to most efficiently and effectively use Fastcase, conduct searches and use the tools Fastcase provides

Presented by: Fastcase and Practice 2.0Chairs and

Faculty: Dr. Phil Rosenthal, Fastcase President and Co-Founder
Erin Page,
Senior Law Librarian
and Outreach
Manager, Fastcase

3 CLE CREDIT
HOURSW-15Wednesday, June 26
3:45 p.m. – 5:15 p.m.

Antitrust in the Age of Populism: Is Antitrust Enforcement Too Lax?

Since the late 1970s, antitrust enforcement has singularly focused on the economics of "consumer welfare" or, more precisely, whether challenged conduct or a potential merger makes consumers better or worse off. Since the Great Recession, however, a growing chorus of academics, pundits and politicians have argued that these antitrust policies have led to a rise in corporate concentration across industries and increased income inequality, among other harms. The critics argue to reorient (or return) antitrust law to consider factors beyond consumer welfare, such as jobs, wages and income disparity. Proposed legislation calls for a "Better Deal" for the American people. This interactive program presents and debates this trend in antitrust law, its long-term prospects and its practical effects.

What You'll Learn:

1. Why has antitrust regained the public interest in recent years?
2. What is antitrust consumer welfare and why is it the focus of modern antitrust enforcement?
3. What is the new populist antitrust movement (referred to by its critics as "Hipster Antitrust"), and how would it change antitrust enforcement?
4. Is antitrust law and enforcement likely to change in the foreseeable future?

Presented by: Antitrust Section

Chairs: Laura M. Kam,
DLA Piper LLP (US)
Barak Orbach,
University of Arizona James E.
Rogers College of Law

Faculty: Eric M. Fraser,
Osborn Maledon PA
Christian Lorenz,
Senior Legal Editor, Antitrust,
Practical Law
Barak Orbach,
Professor of Law, University of Arizona James E. Rogers
College of Law

1.5 CLE CREDIT
HOURSW-16Wednesday, June 26
3:45 p.m. – 5:15 p.m.

Wrongful Convictions

The presentation will cover the leading causes of wrongful convictions and things that should be done to reduce risk of future wrongful convictions. We will also cover the ethical considerations for lawyers defending and prosecuting criminal cases, how the ethical rules impact decisions the use of questionable evidence at trial, and discovery violations that might lead to a wrongful conviction.

What You'll Learn:

1. The leading causes of wrongful convictions
2. Steps that can be taken to prevent or reduce wrongful convictions
3. The ethical rules surrounding wrongful convictions

Presented by: Arizona Justice ProjectChairs and

Faculty: Tim Agan,
The Arizona Justice
Project
Lindsay Herf,
The Arizona Justice
Project

1.5 CLE ETHICS
CREDIT HOURS